St. Mary’s Regional Hospital Makes Impactful Donation

ENID, OKLA. — St. Mary’s Regional Medical Center in Enid has made an impactful donation to the Respiratory Care program at Autry Technology Center. St. Mary’s is donating their Quinton Eclipse Premier Electrocardiography machine which is valued at $15,000. This piece of equipment can be used for cardiac stress testing, cardiac pacemaker checks, EKG’s and a variety of other procedures.

“This will be a major improvement in the ability to train students for cardiology before they hit the hospitals,” said Deryl Gulliford, respiratory care instructor at Autry Technology Center. “Students will have the most advanced training we could provide.”

St. Mary’s will be upgrading their systems this year. The ECG machine is a cutting-edge, wireless device that allows administrators to quickly receive orders, transmit test results and make a diagnosis.

“St. Mary’s has long been a partner with Autry Tech and a big supporter of its healthcare programs,” said Kent Jordan, director of cardiopulmonary at St. Mary’s. “The Autry respiratory program produces some of the most well trained respiratory therapists in the state which is not only a benefit for both Enid hospitals but for the entire state of Oklahoma. The Autry program has enabled our hospital to have a continued line of highly trained therapists who can step in and provide great care to our patients.”

St. Mary’s Regional Medical Center serves the community of Northwest Oklahoma. The Medical Center consists of 229 licensed beds and offers a full complement of inpatient and outpatient services. Areas of specialization include cardiac services, neurosciences, women's health, emergency medicine and rehabilitation.

Autry Technology Center has been a part of the Enid community since 1967 and is one of 29 CareerTech schools across Oklahoma. The center has more than 25 career programs and offers a wide variety of evening and weekend short-term courses and certifications for many diverse career fields. Autry also offers services to businesses in need of training and development. Each year approximately 11,000 students come to Autry from all areas of business and industry. Autry is located at 1201 W. Willow in Enid.
