Autry Technology Center Launches Superintendent Search

ENID, Okla. – Autry Technology Center has partnered with the Oklahoma State School Boards Association to assist in its search for the next superintendent. Autry Tech board members will soon seek community input as part of the search process.

An online survey is available at autrytech.edu so students, parents/guardians, Autry Tech employees, business partners and other community members can share what qualities they believe are important in the next superintendent.

Board president Martie Oyler said board members will use information gathered via the survey to help guide its decision making.

“The board is ready to listen. Hiring a new leader is a critical decision for the future of Autry Tech’s students, clients, educators, families and the entire community,” said Oyler. “We value the input of our community in the process, and we’re working with OSSBA to create opportunities for everyone to share with the board what’s important to look for in a new superintendent.”

The board is accepting applications in late August and anticipates selecting a new superintendent in November.

OSSBA has performed superintendent searches throughout the state for school districts of all sizes. Districts that have recently used its search service include Oklahoma City, Enid, Chisholm, Washington, Norman, Metro Technology Center, and Moore Norman Technology Center. The association will advertise the opening, recruit potential candidates and provide an electronic application management system.

“This is such an exciting time and process for the Autry Technology Center district,” Oyler said. “As one of the top Career Tech Centers in the state, we want to continue to fill the community workforce with qualified workers and set our future generations up for success! We’re eager to find a leader who can help us achieve that vision.”

Autry Technology Center has been a part of the Enid community since 1967 and is one of 29 CareerTech schools across Oklahoma. The center has more than 25 career programs and offers a wide variety of evening and weekend short-term courses and certifications for many diverse career fields. Autry serves nearly 16,000 individuals each year, including many area employees who receive training through the Business and Industry Services Department that works with over 500 local businesses each year.
